Thanks, Jim. I actually have the program, which is on a website called RetroArchive (<http://annex.retroarchive.org/cdrom/nightowl-006/018A/index.html>). With your permission, I will share the program with Edward Mendelson, a professor at Columbia University, who has an entire website dedicated to WordPerfect for DOS! (<https://mendelson.org/wpdos>). He posts lots of third party tools to help WPDOS users.

Nice detective work, Tim!

Yes, that was my program. I'm not sure I still have a copy--I'll look for it as I get time over the weekend and let you know.

Hello Mr. White,

My name is Tim Garner. I live in San Diego, CA. I came across a WordPerfect 5.1 for DOS word-for-word comparison program on the internet that was designed by James H. White of St. Louis, MO (8544 Bryan, to be exact).

Would you be the James H. White who created this program? And if so, would you be willing to share it with me and other WordPerfect 5.1 users? (Yes, there are several of us still out there!)

Many thanks in advance,

Tim Garner
